HISTORY

On January 23, 1992, Councilman Mark Ridley-Thomas launched the "Campaign for a New Eighth District" with the goal of increasing the quality of life for residents living in the Eighth City Council District of Los Angeles. A key feature of the Campaign was the establishment of the Empowerment Congress and the institution of Neighborhood Development Councils (NDC), vehicles for people who live, work, attend school, religious organizations or own property or a business in the district to shape the policies and decisions which affect their lives. There were five Neighborhood Development Councils, divided geographically by census tracts: SOUTHEAST, SOUTHWEST, CENTRAL, WEST and NORTH. These NDCs served as a prototype for the city-wide neighborhood councils and are now part of the city neighborhood council system under the Los Angeles City Charter Revisions approved by voters in 1999.
